RECALLS DAYS WHEN "ED" RYAN WAS STAR. IN THEATRICAL WORLD

Pete Dailey Among Notables Who Stopped at Old Union Square Hotel in Union St.

Twenty-five years ago in the month of March, 1889, a galexy of stars of stageland were in Bridgeport to play at various theaters here. Names armost unknown to theater goers of the present generation but names to conjure with among the theater goers of that day were down on the regis-ter of the old Union Square hotel here. The New York Clipper thought it an incident of sufficient importance to record that a number of famous performers were in Bridgeport on that date. In the current issue of the famous theatrical journal there appears among the occurrences. mous theatrical journal there appears among the occurrences reproduced from the Clipper of M years ago, this liem: "Among the professionals stopping at the Union Square hotel Bridgeport, were: Ed Ryan M Lester, Polly McDonald, Paul Allen, Ollie Lewis, Billy Lester, Annie Hart, John Daly, Annie Devere, Thomas Haley, Annie Clark, Dan Waldron, Master Martin, A. F. Wanda, J. J. Murray and Pete Dailey."

The Union Square hotel was then located on the north side of Union street

All the performers mentioned in the old Clipper item were famous in the theatrical profession of that day al-though but few of the present genration of theater goers have ever seen them or can even recall their names.

Pete Dailey, who appeared as a costar with May Irwin was with Weber and Fields' all star aggregation and also starred in his own companies. He has been dead about six years. Most of the others have also passed to the "Great Beyond."
